This Way to the EGRESS | Onward! Up A Frightening Creek

If Tom Waits and Patti Smith made a musical lovechild it might sound a little like EGRESS. Whether you know them as the “dance band to ring in the end of the world with” or by their “raise your spirit, raise a glass and drop a beat” attitude, EGRESS will leave their mark on you as the six-person troupe cascades onto the stage in an explosion of sound and sight. EGRESS is equal parts unruly vaudeville, ebullient world-beat and three ring circus all the while playing an amalgamation of worldly genres catapulting their audience through time and space with unexpected shifts of styles, tempos and time signatures.

EGRESS is Taylor Galassi (lead vocals, accordion, piano); Sarah Shown (vocals, piano, violin); John Wentz (tuba, backup vocals); Joe Lynch (trombone, backup vocals); Jaclyn Kidd (guitar, banjo) and Nick Pecca (drums and percussion). Hailing from a wide variety of musical backgrounds with a diverse array of influences, EGRESS crafts intricately arranged audible cocktails which will be sure to make you move. Their rambunctious stage show generates enough energy to light up a small city while their genre-bending miscellany leaves the audience wondering what will happen next. EGRESS’ infectious energy is contagious and afterwards you will be coming back for more.

With the successful release of their 2015 album behind them, This Way to the EGRESS have finished recording their fourth LP, Onward! Up A Frightening Creek at Vibromonk Studios in Brooklyn, NYC. It will be unleashed onto unsuspecting listeners September, 22nd 2017. The first single “See No Evil” will drop June 27th, 2017 followed by a 2nd single; August 10th and a music video.
